

Information Visualization of the Correlates of War datasets

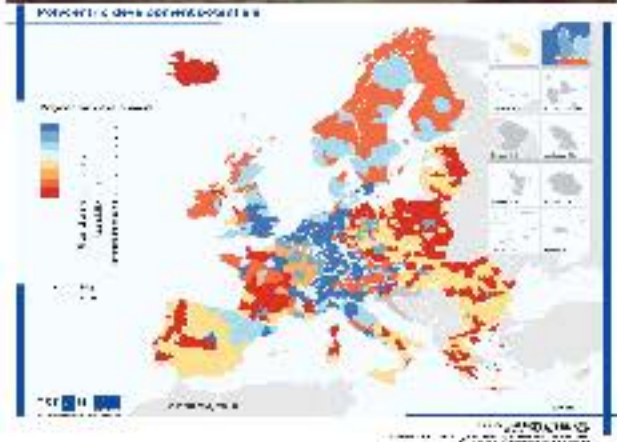

by Team Peace

Hyun Jun Choi choi797@usc.edu

Shiv Velagala velagala@usc.edu

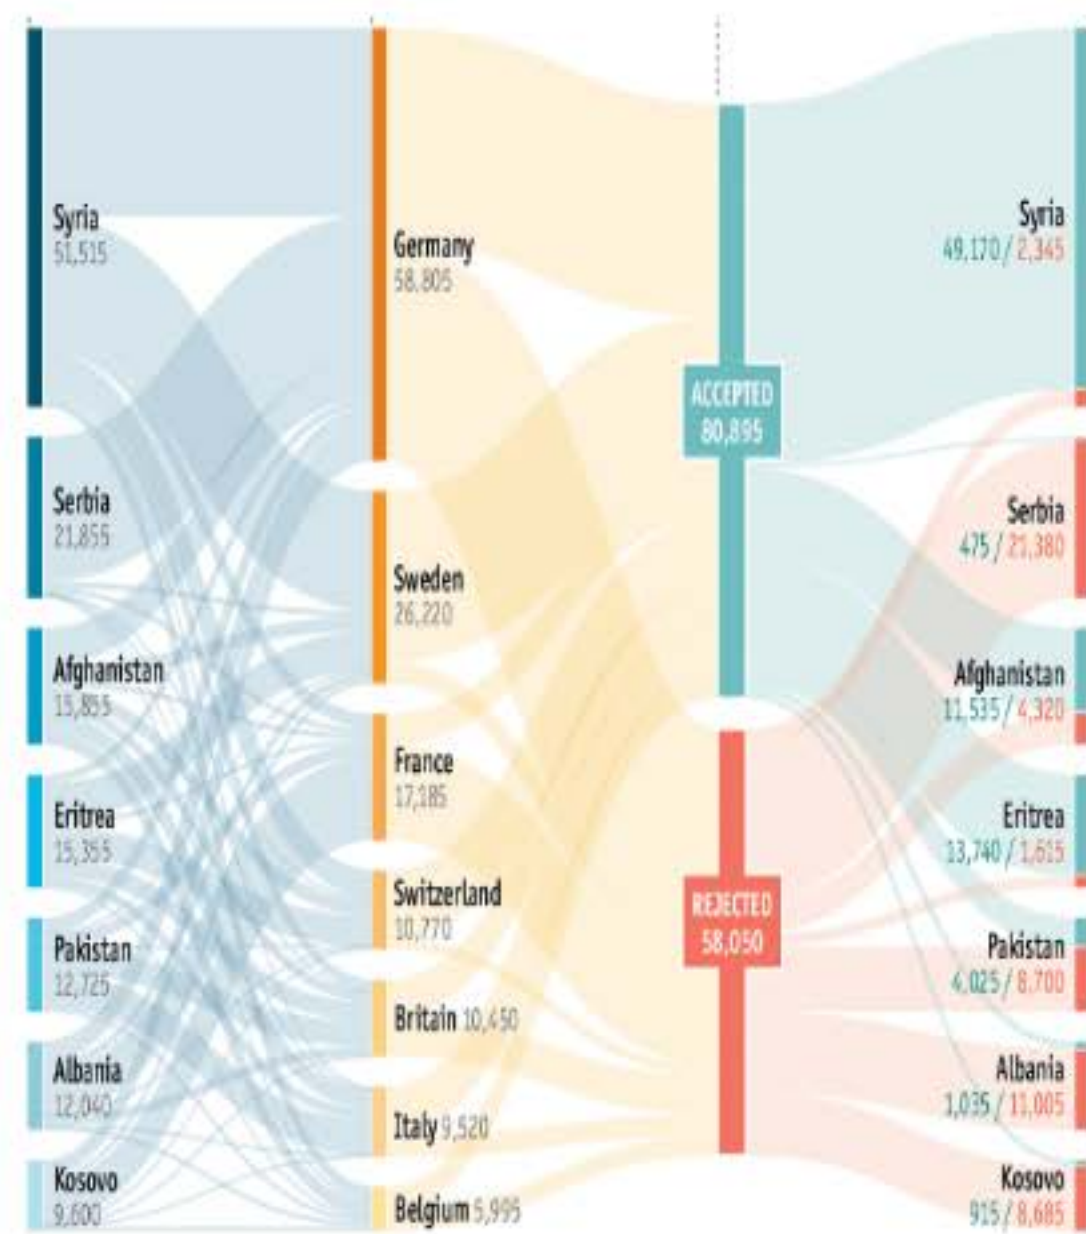

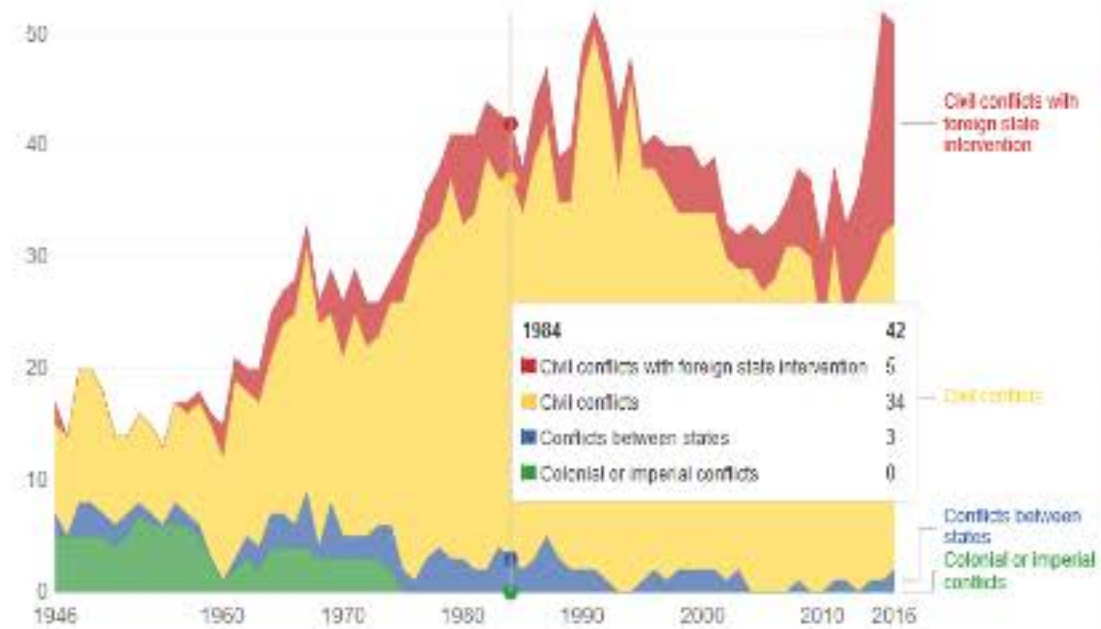

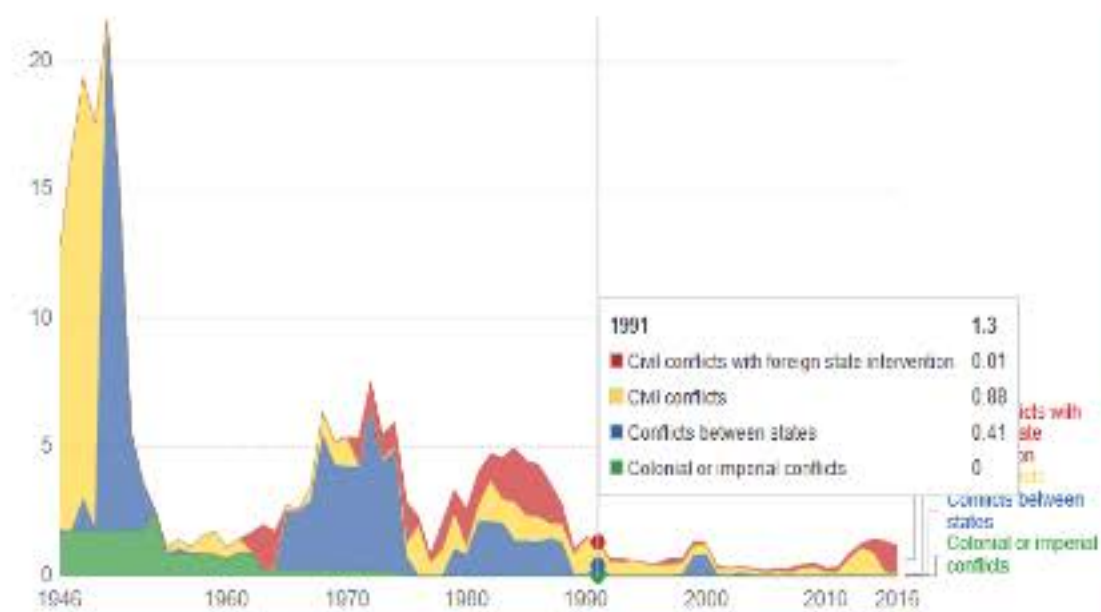

Seun Deleawe deleawe@usc.edu

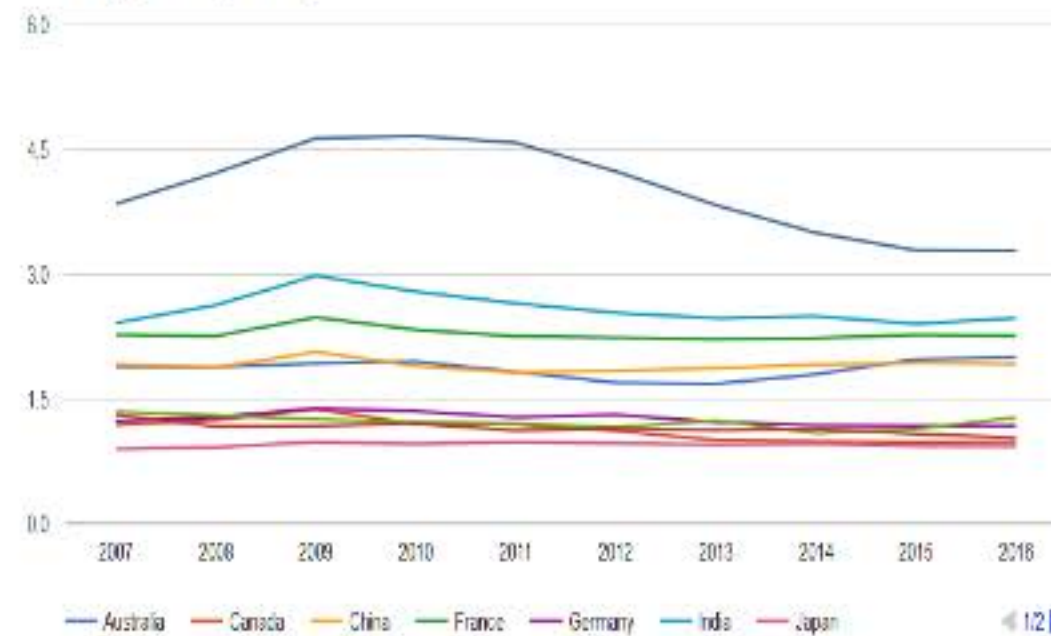

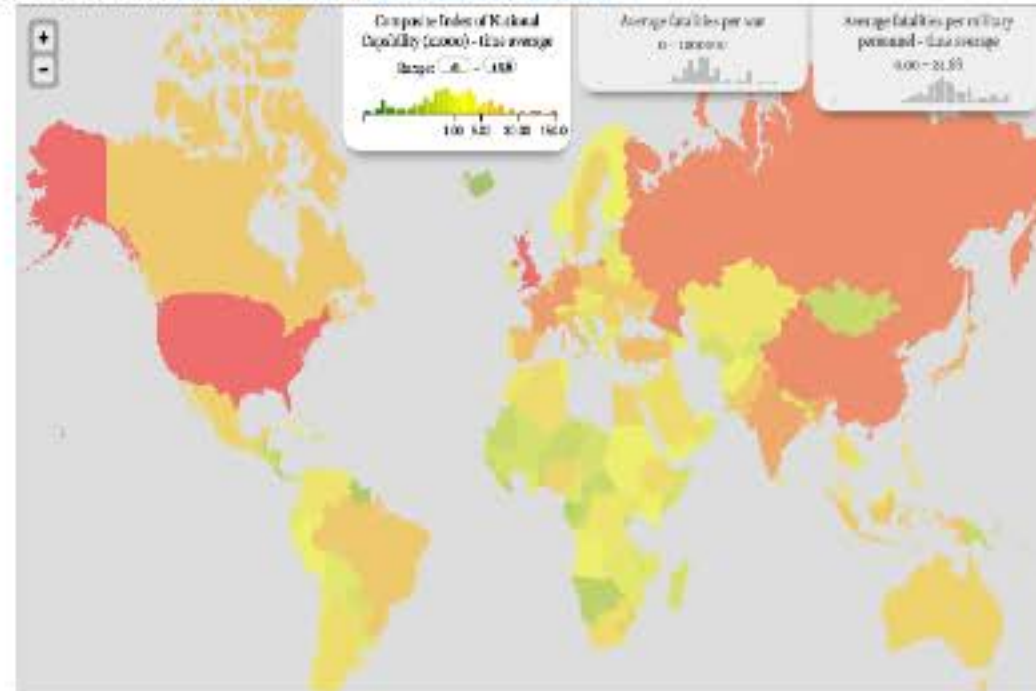

Military Expenditure(% of GDP)

Source: Correlates of War Interstate War Data v4.0 and National Material Capabilities Index

Fatalities vs National Capabilities Index

Source: Correlates of War National Material Capabilities Index v4.0 and Interstate War Data v4.0 (size of circle = number of wars)

Inkscape

The Correlates of War Project

Journal of Peace Research

Journal of Peace Research

BRIDGE BRIDGE is a research project funded by the European Union under the Horizon 2020 programme.

Network Polarization, Network Interdependence and International Conflict, 1816-2002

2014-2017

Researching International Relations in the 21st Century

This research project is a collaborative effort between the University of Cambridge, the University of Oxford, and the University of York. It is funded by the European Union under the Horizon 2020 programme. The project aims to explore the relationship between network polarization, network interdependence, and international conflict from 1816 to 2002. The project is led by Professor [Name] and includes a team of researchers from various disciplines, including political science, sociology, and network science.

Introduction

The research project is a collaborative effort between the University of Cambridge, the University of Oxford, and the University of York. It is funded by the European Union under the Horizon 2020 programme. The project aims to explore the relationship between network polarization, network interdependence, and international conflict from 1816 to 2002. The project is led by Professor [Name] and includes a team of researchers from various disciplines, including political science, sociology, and network science.

The project is a collaborative effort between the University of Cambridge, the University of Oxford, and the University of York. It is funded by the European Union under the Horizon 2020 programme. The project aims to explore the relationship between network polarization, network interdependence, and international conflict from 1816 to 2002. The project is led by Professor [Name] and includes a team of researchers from various disciplines, including political science, sociology, and network science.

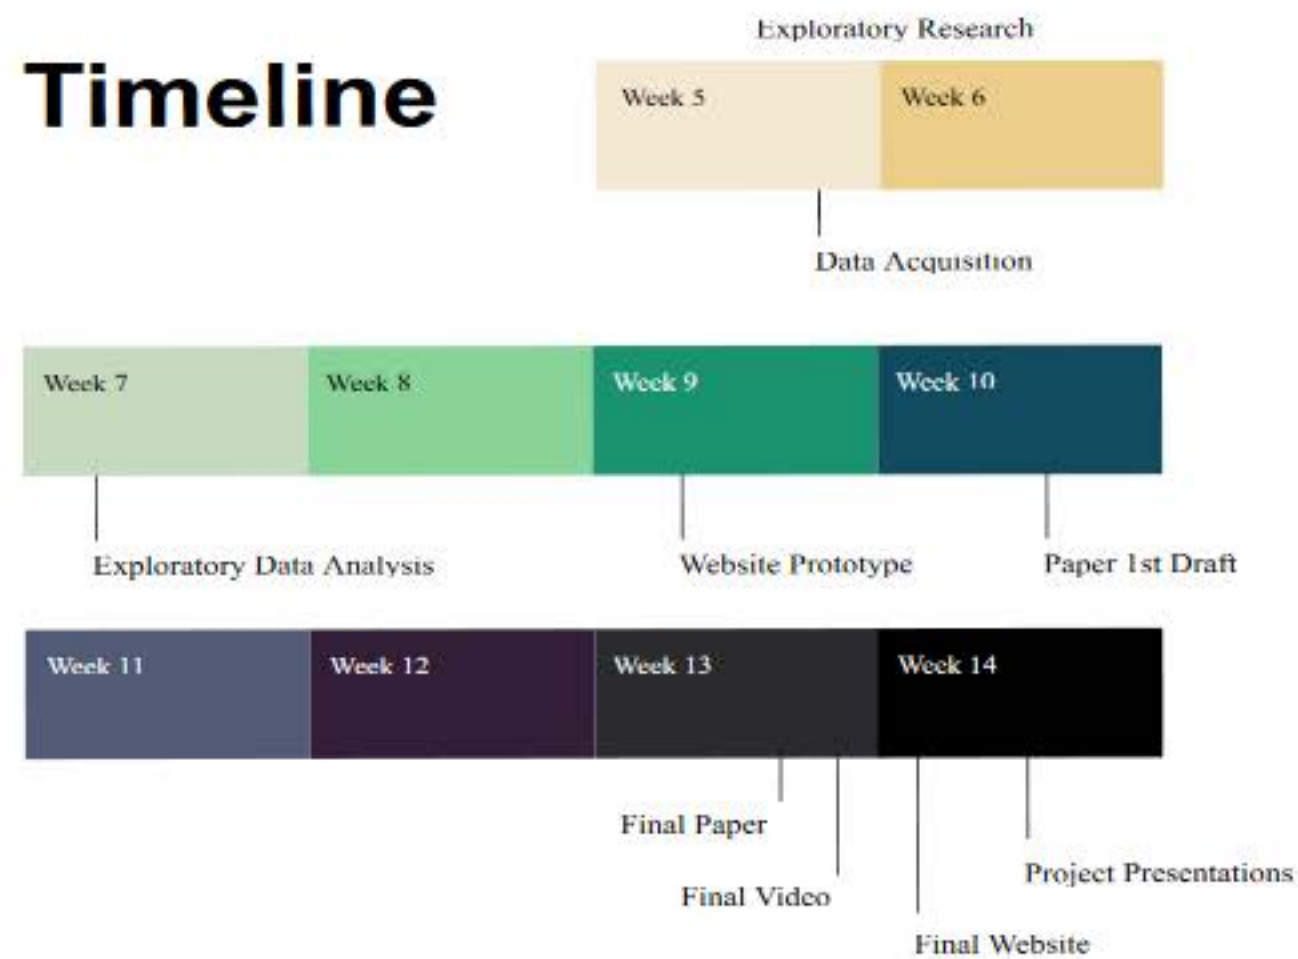

The project is a collaborative effort between the University of Cambridge, the University of Oxford, and the University of York. It is funded by the European Union under the Horizon 2020 programme. The project aims to explore the relationship between network polarization, network interdependence, and international conflict from 1816 to 2002. The project is led by Professor [Name] and includes a team of researchers from various disciplines, including political science, sociology, and network science.

The project is a collaborative effort between the University of Cambridge, the University of Oxford, and the University of York. It is funded by the European Union under the Horizon 2020 programme. The project aims to explore the relationship between network polarization, network interdependence, and international conflict from 1816 to 2002. The project is led by Professor [Name] and includes a team of researchers from various disciplines, including political science, sociology, and network science.

The project is a collaborative effort between the University of Cambridge, the University of Oxford, and the University of York. It is funded by the European Union under the Horizon 2020 programme. The project aims to explore the relationship between network polarization, network interdependence, and international conflict from 1816 to 2002. The project is led by Professor [Name] and includes a team of researchers from various disciplines, including political science, sociology, and network science.

Timeline

Team

Hyunjun Choi

Seun Deleawe

Shiv Velagala